Oh, Haruki. What are you looking at so intently?
I'm looking at Meguro City's disaster preparedness information.
The houses are so close together around here that a major earthquake or fire could be really dangerous.
I don't want you to get hurt, Grandma...
So, why don't we secure the furniture and take some fire-safety measures to make your home safer?
We've lived here safely for decades, so we'll be fine.
A few nights later...
Whoooosh...
Rattle, rattle...
Whooo...
Creak, creak...
He was thinking about me... I was far too complacent, saying, "We'll be fine."
If a major earthquake really struck... I'm scared of being trapped under furniture, and of a fire breaking out…
Crash!
How scary...
Doing nothing really does make me uneasy...

The next morning
Haruki?
I kept thinking about it afterward, and it started to scare me…
Could you help me secure the cupboards and take some fire-safety measures?
Of course!
This weekend, let's look online for the supplies together!
Thank you
A few days after placing the order
Everything arrived safely! Do you remember what goes where?
Yes!
I remember perfectly.
Having everything delivered to my home is a big help too.
Securing Furniture
P.16
P.19
Installing an Earthquake-Sensing Circuit Breaker
P.20
ON
All right, the furniture is secured!
We also installed an earthquake-sensing circuit breaker that automatically cuts the power when it detects shaking, so you can feel safer even when you're away!
Without any major construction, our home feels so much safer now!
Now I'll feel a little more at ease if an earthquake strikes.
Thank you, Haruki!
You're welcome!
This is a great first step!
Preparedness begins with caring for the people who matter to you.
Why not start with making your own home a safer place?